There were no signs that Emerita "Emie" Relata Romero, the 37-year-old bartender who was found dead at the abandoned La Fiesta Mall in San Roque Tuesday afternoon, was raped, according to sources at the Department of Public Safety.

Police sources and a family member disclosed that the victim's clothes and underwear were still intact when FBI agents found her body at the northernmost part of La Fiesta. The sources refused to elaborate.

An unidentified man beat up and raped a woman at knifepoint inside her bedroom in western Garapan last Jan. 29. Police released the information to the media only last night.

The suspect also tried to kidnap the victim by attempting to take the victim with him to his car at knifepoint, but she managed to escape by yelling for help.

The suspect was described as in his late teens to early 20's, brown complexioned, very short hair, about 5'5" to 5'8" tall, and weighing 150 to 170 lbs.

The victim, a 25-year-old Asian, sustained unspecified injuries. Medics brought her to the Commonwealth Health Center.

According to the Department of Public Safety, a female caller contacted DPS on Jan. 29 at 6:06am and reported a disturbance at an apartment

As ARRA winds down, CNMI yet to spend $34M of $119M

By HAIDEE V. EUGENIO
haidee_eugenio@saipantribune.com

"helped the CNMI tremendously, there is no doubt about it."

With the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act program winding down, the CNMI has yet to spend $35 million of $119 million awarded it as of Dec. 31, 2011, and remains with the least amount received among U.S. states and territories.

Of the total amount awarded, the biggest chunk or $48 million went to education, while the smallest amount of $1.8 million went to health.

Energy/environment received $39 million so far, while transportation got $15 million among 10 types of public needs that received ARRA money along with infrastructure, family, public safety, research and development/science, housing, and job training/unemployment.

Based on the latest data from federal tracking agency recovery.gov, the amount awarded as of Dec. 31 is almost the same amount received in the previous quarter ending Sept. 30. This may be an indication that $119 million is the peak amount that the CNMI will ever receive under the ARRA program.

Recovery.gov updated its data on Jan. 30, showing that the CNMI was awarded $119 million from Feb. 17, 2009, through Dec. 30, 2011.

Of this amount, over $85 million has been spent and $34 million more has yet to be spent or drawn down.

This is because 20 ARRA projects are over 50 percent completed, 14 that are less than 50 percent completed, and three not started at all. Recovery.gov data shows 20 completed projects in the CNMI.

Rep. Ray Yumul (R-Saipan) said yesterday that ARRA funds

"As for audit and progress report, I know there are both federal and local agencies that will ensure that it will be done as per ARRA grant requirement," Yumul told Saipan Tribune.

House floor leader George Camacho (Ind-Saipan) said it is important to know how agencies, especially the Public School System, will be able to cope without any more ARRA money.

"What will happen to PSS? There were lots of teachers hired because of ARRA money, but when ARRA is done, what will happen to those teachers and what would be the impact on students?" Camacho asked.

With the fiscal year 2013 budget being prepared, he said it would be wise to ask agencies about their plans post-ARRA.

U.S. territories receive much less in ARRA money than the 50 U.S. states whose ARRA awards range from $663 million in Wyoming to $33 billion in California.

The CNMI, with a population of 53,883, got the least ARRA money of $119 million, much lower than American Samoa's $299 million and with a population of 55,519.

Integrated Professional Solutions LLC, which bagged a sole-source contract from the Fitial administration, manages ARRA money awarded to the central government directly. The IPS contract will end in April. The CNMI central government received some $88 million in direct awards to various agencies.

ARRA money managed by IPS is separate from ARRA money applied for and received by autonomous agencies such as an $8 million award to IT&E and some $28 million to Sandy Beach Homes Project.

UMDA: Palms Resort not sold yet

The United Micronesian Development Association's board chairman, Joe Lifofoi, denied yesterday a report that came out in a Korean newspaper that Palms Resort Saipan had been sold to a Korean company.

He admitted that the hotel is for sale but clarified that no formal transaction has occurred to date. He said "negotiations are ongoing" with potential buyers, one of which is Korea-based E-Land Group.

Lifofoi refused to disclose the price tag for the UMDA-owned hotel, saying nothing has been finalized yet.

The Korean Herald reported early last month that E-Land has bought for an undisclosed sum two hotel resorts on Saipan: the Palms Resort Saipan and the Pacific Islands Club.

E-Land Group is reportedly one of the biggest fashion and retail firms in South Korea and has major business interests in hotels, condominiums, and construction.

Known as the former Nikko Hotel, Palms Resort is a 14-story, 313-room hotel across the former La Fiesta Mall in San Roque. UMDA acquired it in February 2008 for $3 million and renamed it Palms Resort. In 2010, it announced major renovation plans that resulted in the layoff of its more than 100 employees. (*Moneth G. # December arrivals up 6 percent December 2011 visitor arrivals to the Northern Mariana Islands were up 6 percent compared to December 2010, according to the Marianas Visitors Authority.

In a statement yesterday, MVA said that arrivals to the islands of Saipan, Tinian and Rota registered 33,418 visitors in December compared to 31,572 in December 2010. November and December both posted increased arrivals this calendar year compared to last year.

Arrivals from Japan dropped 8 percent to 13,094 in December, as the NMI received only two daily flights from Narita for most of the month, compared to three daily flights in December 2010. However, due to high demand during the peak travel season, Delta Air Lines launched a third weekly flight again on Dec. 29, and Asiana Airlines re-launched daily service from Osaka on Dec. 22.

Arrivals from Korea were up 8 percent to 11,345 visitors. Asiana Airlines continued to operate Busan-Saipan charter flights launched in November, as well as its two daily Incheon-Saipan flights using a Boeing 767 with 250 seats on the daytime route and an Airbus 321 with 177 seats on the nighttime run.

"The overall increase in visitor arrivals for November and December has had a direct and positive effect on government revenue," said MVA managing director Perry Tenorio. "To sustain this benefit, we still need to support these added flights with adequate promotions."

Arrivals from China increased 59 percent in December to 5,708 visitors. This December the NMI received six flights weekly from China, compared to only two flights weekly last December.

Arrivals from Russia posted an increase of 20 percent to 673 in December 2011, and increased were also registered from the United States (2 percent to 788) and Hong Kong (185 percent to 94).

Arrivals were also down in December from the Philippines (2 percent to 47), Guam (9 percent to 1,402), and Other Areas (2 percent to 267).

area came to her aid and called 911.

The suspect fled the scene in an older model yellowish gold Hyundai Accent four-door sedan. He drove north on Plumeria, made a right turn to Micro Beach Road, and traveled east toward the Fire Station-Beach Road intersection.

The car continued east without stopping at the three-way stop at the Garapan Fire Station, and made a right turn on Chalan Pale Arnold (Middle Road) where the witness lost sight of him.

"Additional details will be provided as new information is made available. This case is currently still under investigation. DPS seeks the community's help in locating the suspect's vehicle and in reporting any information leading to the positive identification of the suspect," said police officer Jason Tarkong.

The victim's apartment is located just blocks away from Godfather's Bar, where Emerita Relata Romero worked as a bartender. Romero was reported missing Sunday early morning. Her body was found at the former La Fiesta Mall on Tuesday afternoon.

Macaraig disclosed that he has been in constant communication with the head of the Consulate in Guam to facilitate the transition process.

When asked if there are any efforts to make it easy for Filipinos in the CNMI to travel to Guam to avail of consular services, Macaraig said that travel to Guam or any part of the U.S. is "within the purview of U.S. immigration officials and federal government."

"But what we can do is to recommend to our Consulate in Guam to come here as often as possible, similar to what we are doing for the Filipino community on Tinian and Rota," he added.

According to Macaraig, they will hold mobile consular services on Tinian and Rota to accommodate the needs of Filipino workers there before they totally shut down.

Macaraig would not confirm other Philippine foreign service posts that will also be closed down.

Dismay

The Fitial administration expressed dismay yesterday about this new development despite earlier reports discussing this eventuality.

Gov. Benigno R. Fitial noted the importance of having a consulate on Saipan given the "significant" number of Filipinos in the Commonwealth.

"The Consulate has always been instrumental in providing assistance to its citizens living and working here," Fitial said in a statement. "Moreover, the CNMI government has enjoyed a very healthy working relationship with Consul General Macaraig and his predecessors."

Macaraig met with Fitial weeks ago to inform him about the possibility of shutting down the Consulate. But the governor "was still hopeful that DFA would reconsider its plans" by taking into account the new CNMI-only transitional worker system that has impacted Filipinos workers.

"This is a period when Filipino workers constantly seek the assistance of the Consulate in order to ensure that they are in compliance with new requirements brought about by the federalization of immigration," added Fitial.

Petition

Macaraig revealed that he met with Filipino community leaders last Feb. 8, before the official announcement.

"A lot of them were disappointed," he said. "Nevertheless, we have to send them this information as it may affect their lives and their stay here in the Northern Marianas."

Rudy Francisco, former officer of Movers and was among the over 40 attendees during Wednesday's meeting, said it will be difficult to lose the consulate on Saipan.

"I was surprised that this was their final decision," he told Saipan Tribune. "The Filipino community leaders who attended the meeting have agreed that we will launch a petition to stop the closing of the consulate."

He recognized the need for a consulate in Guam but also pointed out the demand for a consulate on Saipan.

"We will try to gather as much signatures as possible for our petition," he added.

United Filipino Organization president Bong Malasarte said that losing the consulate would be a challenge for Filipinos in the CNMI since it is not easy to travel to Guam.

Moreover, he said, justifying that the consulate's closure as a means to save resources does not make sense for Filipinos in the Commonwealth given that it will not be the Filipino workers who will benefit from this plan.

"I know that there are those who do not think that they will be impacted by the shutting down of the Consulate but they will be because they would need consular services one way or another. How can they access these services if we don't have an office here? We need to keep the consulate open," said Malasarte.

Alvarez arrived at the gym at 11:10pm and saw that the fire was already out of control, with flames and smoke coming from the top of the building.

He said he learned that the fire started in the gym's storage area.

Alvarez said the gym would usually open 5:30pm and close at 8:30pm everyday.

He said two of his mixed martial arts fighters were the last to leave the gym at 9pm on Wednesday.

Trench Tech Guam has been occupying the one-story building for over four years now. Vicente "Ben" Babauta owns the building as well as the adjacent one-story building formerly occupied by Kalayaan Catering.

Alvarez said his gym is not insured.

When asked about his plans, Alvarez replied: "Rebuild. Stay positive. Rise from the ashes!"

Police officer Jason Tarkong said that investigators are still looking into the cause of the fire. Tarkong said he has been training and teaching at the gym for almost four years now. "This is my second home."

On the night of Jan. 14, a fire of unknown cause razed an abandoned building adjacent to the former Kalayaan Catering.

Last Jan. 12, an abandoned barracks located across Hopwood Junior High in Chalan Piao also went up in flames. The fire was believed to be an arson case.

Four other fires occurred that weekend—two houses and a classroom in Chalan Kanoa, and a tin house in Sugar Dock.

Last Nov. 17, three fires broke out in close vicinity of each other—San Antonio, Chalan Piao, and Chalan Kanoa. Investigators suspected that two of those fires were intentionally set of.

before they can bring the body to the Philippines.

Relata and her brother Eduardo Relata will also be going to the Philippines for Romero's burial.

Romero's husband and two daughters—ages 17 and 8—are currently in the Philippines.

Relata said that the FBI and DPS have assured them that they will work hard to arrest the suspect.

She thanked the authorities, the management of Godfather's Bar, friends, and relatives for offering prayers and providing them assistance.

The family, relatives, and friends, started holding nightly rosaries at Romero's residence Thursday at 7pm.

Romero was last seen alive on Sunday around 3am boarding a green or blue tinted sedan in the parking lot of Call-A-Ride Saipan on Chichirica Avenue corner Kadena Di Amor St. in Garapan.

DPS has yet to release the results of the autopsy conducted by Guam chief medical examiner Aurelio A. Espinola to determine the victim's cause of death. Espinola performed the autopsy at the Commonwealth Health Center's morgue Tuesday night until Wednesday midnight.

DPS has classified the case as a homicide. DPS has not released any information since the body was found Tuesday afternoon.

Romero's sister, Estrellita "Lhet" Relata, told Saipan Tribune yesterday that they are planning to bring her remains to Bulacan, the Philippines, early next week.

2 groups chip in $1K to reward pot

By CLARISSA V. DAVID
clarissa_david@saipantribune.com
REPORTER

Two more groups have stepped forward to offer cash rewards for any tips or information that would lead to the arrest of the person or persons responsible for the death of Godfather's bartender Emerita "Emie" R. Romero.

3S Saipan Security Service and Saipan City Taxi Association offered a $1,000 reward yesterday in hopes of helping solve the case of Romero, 37, whose body was found Tuesday at the abandoned La Fiesta Mall in San Roque.

Rabby Syed, president of both 3S Saipan Security Service, a company that provides security services, and Saipan City Taxi Association, a corporation composed of some 18 taxi operators and drivers on island, said that the amount was collected from members and employees of their groups.

"We are saddened by what happened to Emie Romero and we hope that this amount would encourage anyone who has information about the case to come out and help in the investigation," he told Saipan Tribune. "Our members and staff are also extending our condolences to the victim's family."

Syed said it is imperative that justice is served for Romero who is described by her family and friends as a devoted mother, a generous sibling, a loving daughter, a dependable employee, and a sweet friend.

"We want to bring the individual or individuals responsible for Emie's death to justice," he said.

Syed, who is also the president of the United Workers Movement-NMI, said that Romero's case is an unfortunate incident just like the disappearance of the Luhk sisters last year.

This latest incident, Syed said, has caused widespread panic and alarm in this "beautiful island."

"They are scared, they're in fear. It is very unhealthy," he said.

With federal and local authorities working in the case, Syed is optimistic that the matter will be resolved soon.

Syed urged the community to be vigilant and work together to bring peace and security to the islands.

"We should all be careful and open our eyes to things happening around us to protect each other. That's how we can eliminate this kind of incident in our community," he added.

Last Wednesday, Bridge Capital LLC and Pacific Amusement, Inc. each donated a $5,000 reward for any individual who can provide information to help Romero's case. All cash rewards would supplement the $1,000 initially offered by Crime Stoppers for any information leading to an arrest.

Completion of Saipan airport runway rehab pushed back

The rehabilitation of the Francisco C. Ada/Saipan International Airport's main runway will take longer than expected due to problems that were found during actual construction work, according to the Commonwealth Ports Authority yesterday.

Funded by the Federal Aviation Administration, the Saipan runway project began in 2009. Its original target completion date was October 2011 but this was later revised to February 2012. Now the

CPA to take over Outer Cove Marina

The Commonwealth Ports Authority will soon take over full responsibility and operation of the Outer Cove Marina following revelations yesterday that the Executive Branch is in the process of completing the transfer documents.

Seaports facility chair Benigno Sablan told the board at their regular meeting yesterday that Gov. Benigno R. Fitial had confirmed the facility's impending transfer to CPA.

The Department of Lands and Natural Resources currently has responsibility over the marina after the approval of the sub-new deadline is June 2012. The project's total cost is at $21 million to date.

According to CPA executive director Edward Deleon Guerrero, this project has been on hold since October 2011 because the materials available on Saipan do not meet FAA requirements and that 4-inch deep cracks were discovered in the middle of the runway.

CPA also found that the contractor, Guam Pacific Power Corp. Inc., has been following an obsolete design, which is about six years old.

"We need to clarify with FAA whether or not we can submit a modification to reduce [the materials] requirement because the materials we have on Saipan cannot reach the FAA requirement. So this stopped the project as well as the design used when the project was bid out," he said. FAA eventually gave the green light to the modifications after a series of consultations.

Deleon Guerrero said all these problems have been addressed and construction will continue on Feb. 16. He said the new completion date is on June 3, 2012.

The airport's main runway was first built 25 years ago. (Moneth Deposa) merged land lease agreement between the Marine Revitalization Corp. and the CNMI government.

Sablan said the official takeover may take less than a year.

Once the transfer is complete, he said that CPA will be responsible for entering contracts with boat owners, assessing fees, inking consignment agreements, and enforcing regulations.

The board discussion yesterday focused on the need to renovate and develop the marina in order for it to generate money for CPA. (Moneth Deposa)

Fitial urged not to sign zoning bill, comments on recycling bill

The Saipan Chamber of Commerce has asked Gov. Benigno R. Fitial not to sign a local bill that makes massive changes to the Saipan Zoning Law of 2008 so that the "progress and improvements" made as a result of the law won't go to waste.

Chamber president Douglas Brennan said the business organization "strongly opposes" House Local Bill 17-26, Substitute 1, as the bill is "counterproductive" to the purpose of the original zoning legislation.

"Through the enactment of the original zoning law...and the improvements that have come as a result of slow and gradual changes as to how our businesses and communities are organized, we are making progress. That progress and those improvements will essentially be eliminated with the signing of HLB 17-26," Brennan said in a Feb. 4 letter to Fitial. Lt. Gov. Eloy S. Inos said the Fitial administration is still reviewing the local bill, introduced by Rep. Stanley Torres (Ind-Saipan).

Brennan, moreover, said the Chamber believes that "business development throughout the CNMI needs to be well thought out and meticulously planned in order to enhance the natural beauty and unique culture of our islands."

"The SCC asks you not to sign this...legislation. Please give the current law time to have the effect intended by its original authors," Brennan added.

Brennan also wrote to House Ways and Means Committee chair Rep. Ray Basa (Cov-Saipan), raising concerns about House Bill 17-208, which seeks to establish a recycling deposit fee and payment program.

While the Chamber agrees with the bill's intent to address pollution and environmental concerns, solid waste disposal and the islands' natural beauty, he said the method outlined in HB 17-208 "does not adequately address those concerns."

Brennan said the bill's recycling plan already exists "and there are those already collecting for profit doing exactly that." (Haidee V. Eugenio)

Boy Scouts to cap Scouting Week with picnic

The CNMI Boy Scouts of America will culminate its Boy Scouting Week celebration with a picnic on Saturday, 9am, at the American Memorial Park Pavilion.

District Commissioner Wayne Gillespie said yesterday that this year's celebration marks the 101st anniversary of scouting in the U.S.

"We are inviting all Scouts and any boy who is interested in becoming a Scout to attend," Gillespie said.

Gillespie said there will be games, activities, and free food for Scouts whose age range is from first to 12th grade. "The emphasis will be on fun," he added.

National Boy Scout Week is from Feb. 5 to 11.

Gillespie also said that they putting a "strong focus" on the recruitment of male or female adult leaders.

CNMI Boy Scouts of America said that an adult leader must be at least 21 years old, of good moral character, has no felony record, and alcohol- and drug-free.

"Volunteers do not have to have experience in scouting and we have more positions than just Scout Masters available," Gillespie said. "We really need a strong turnout of volunteer candidates!"

Gillespie encouraged community members "who might be interested in becoming involved in scouting to also drop by and speak with us about the wide range of positions we have open."

For more information, call Gillespie at 483-0885. (Clarissa V. David)

Time served for man who tried to fly to LA using fake papers

The federal court has sentenced a man who tried to sneak aboard a Los Angeles-bound flight to 203 days of time served in jail. Upon his release, Dongjun Li shall serve one year of supervised release.

U.S. District Court for the NMI Chief Judge Ramona V. Manglona on Tuesday also ordered Li to pay a $200 special assessment fee.

Li's sentence was at the recommendation of assistant U.S. attorney Ross Naughton and defense attorney Mark Scoggins.

Manglona remanded Li back into the custody of U.S. Immigration after the hearing.

Last Friday, Manglona reset

Li's hearing to Tuesday, Feb. 7, but freed him since he has been in custody for more than six months now, when the maximum recommended sentence is only six months.

A federal jury last October found Li, a Chinese national, guilty of immigration fraud and false statement. The document fraud was related to Li's possession and use of fake parole documents when he tried to check in for a trip to California on July 15, 2011, at the Saipan International Airport using fake papers. (Ferdie de la Torre)

Flashback

A LOOK BACK AT PAST YEARS' HEADLINES

Feb. 10, 1999

Legislators slam Miller

Members of the CNMI Legislature yesterday slammed as yet another threat to its self-governance a proposed rider in an appropriation bill in the U.S. Congress that will amend the tariff-free treatment of local goods as well as make any raise in the federal minimum wage level applicable in the commonwealth. Since it will be done through a legislation that will certainly get support from U.S. lawmakers, they said the proposal will undermine the authority of the island government to control its labor and immigration in view of its impact on the CNMI economy. "Those are serious implications on our Covenant," explained House Majority Floor leader Ana S. Tereyego.

Students must face scholarship reforms

Students who are enjoying local educational grants will have no choice but to live with the future reforms that will be introduced in June by the CNMI government. CNMI Scholarship Director Hilaria K. Santos and Teacher Academy Coordinator Joan B. Kani both shared this confidence that students could cope with present realities. Santos said off-island students have been notified that educational aid for the summer term was suspended. This was also confirmed by Special Education Advisor Dan Nielsen who is drafting a letter to advise recipients of the $15,000 cap for full scholars and amendments on the other statutory programs.

Fight takeover—legislators

Stunned by the U.S. Senate's approval of the federal immigration takeover bill, two members of the Legislature yesterday called for active lobbying campaign in Washington to block its passage in the House of Representatives. To draw support from the lower house, a delegation from the CNMI should also travel to the U.S. capital to personally appeal against the legislation that will extend federal immigration laws to the island. S. 1052 was passed by the nation's senators on Monday, becoming the first measure to reach both chambers of the bicameral body in Washington D.C. amending CNMI's self-governing status as provided under the Covenant.

Bank assets reach $571M

In what appears to be a sign of strong financial infrastructure in the Northern Marianas, bank assets have reached over $571 million during the third quarter of last year, according to a report prepared by the Department of Commerce. Total deposits amounted to $555 million during the third quarter of 1999, slightly up from the previous quarter's $554 million. The 1999 Quarterly Bank Report noted that deposits during the first three months of last year reached $529 million. Savings deposit from both the government and the private sector dropped from $203 million during the second quarter of last year to $191 million the following year. First quarter deposits totaled $204 million.

Supreme Court fines AGO $250

The Supreme Court has fined the Attorney General's Office $250 for filing an appeal that magistrates described as "frivolous." The High Court also directed the AGO to pay plaintiffs Guo Qiong He and Yi Gong Chen the amount of their expenses in opposing the appeal, including incurred attorney's fees. Associate Justice Alejandro Castro, together with Justice Pro Tempore Virginia Sablan Onerheim and Kathleen M. Salii, signed the order. The Supreme Court's ruling was in connection with two cases separately filed by He and Chen at the Superior Court, accusing the government of violating their federal civil rights. The two were nabbed by immigration officers without a warrant of arrest at a Saipan garment factory in 1997. They were eventually ordered deported.

Online program seeks NMI students

Taking up a quality online course is neither easy nor cheap; it takes commitment and active participation from both students and the institution, according to University of Phoenix Online regional director for Asia and the Pacific Rim Jason Schrott. "People think that an online course is easy and cheap. Both of these are misnomers. To run a high quality education in an online environment that is instructor-led requires a lot of resources, and a lot of commitment from many people," said Schrott. He made the remarks when asked on issues relating to quality control and academic integrity.

Egypt's police state and democracy cannot coexist

The military-led government in Egypt appears to have learned few lessons from the disastrous mistakes leading up to President Hosni Mubarak's ouster from power almost exactly a year ago. Denying democracy and continuing to impose the iron fist of dictatorship is the surest way to stoke a revolution, as Mubarak and other Arab dictators learned to their detriment.

Blaming internal unrest on outside agitators makes for easy scapegoats but does little to answer the real economic and human rights concerns behind Egypt's ongoing street protests. Aside from the scapegoat argument, there is no justification for the leadership's effort to prosecute 19 Americans among 43 pro-democracy workers on charges that their nongovernmental groups illegally used foreign funds.

The Americans include Sam LaHood, director of the International Republican Institute and son of Transportation Secretary Ray LaHood. Sam LaHood is among six Americans who are being blocked from leaving Egypt.

Both the IRI and its Democratic Party counterpart, the National Democratic Institute, were created in 1983 under the aegis of the National Endowment for Democracy. Their taxpayer-funded work around the world provides staffing for election-observer missions, helps fledgling political parties organize and creates building blocks for democratic governance.

They were on the ground providing training as countries such as Haiti, Iraq, Afghanistan and Serbia emerged from years of brutal dictatorship and embarked on the uncertain path toward democracy. Aside from promoting the formation of secular parties, these groups are pledged not to intervene politically. They urge civic involvement and a free press, and prod women, the poor and minority groups to participate.

The irony is that some of the beneficiaries of this training, including workers from Serbia, Romania and Lebanon, are among those facing trial in Egypt.

According to the NDI, security forces raided the organization's offices in three Egyptian cities even though they provided no warrant or explanation. It's unclear what law the police were enforcing as they seized equipment, documents and money, then left. The National Democratic Institute has been accredited in Egypt since 2005 and has never been asked to stop its work or close its offices.

These actions can only deepen the growing divide between the United States and Egypt, endangering a friendship that once earned Egypt the mantle of America's closest Arab ally. If Egypt's leadership cannot be swayed by the logic of democracy, perhaps it is time for Washington to follow through with threats to curtail the U.S. aid that was scheduled to pump $1.5 billion into Egypt's fragile economy this year. As Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., said Friday, "The days of blank checks are over."

There is no such thing as a democratic police state. Egypt's leadership must stop concocting excuses to delay the transfer of power.

Autism Awareness Quiz Nite

In our last week of the fall-winter semester at the Shenyang Aerospace University, one of my teacher colleagues from Hawaii left earlier than planned. On the side, he tutored young English students brought by their parents to one of many storefront schools that specialize in small class instructions of languages for children of those anxious to get their children get ahead in the rat race toward passing government standard tests. English proficiency is one of the areas tested.

I had three fourth-grade students in one of the classes. The Chinese administrator, curious on how I went about my pedagogy, asked if we could have the lesson in the open classroom where the parents usually waited, instead of the more private room where we closed the door. So we did.

One of the parents who brought her girl had an older boy, at first blank-eyed and non-communicating, almost acting sedated and obviously under very close supervision. I use tunes that students are already familiar with from TV and radio to get them vocalize their oral English, get them familiar with words they already have seen written, have them hear how words are used by a "native" speaker (me), and get them to repeat it so they can hear the words again in their own voice.

The almost two-hour session was divided into two 45-minute sections, and two-thirds into the first section, I noticed the quiet boy getting animated each time we sang a tune, while the mother copiously wrote whatever I said. I suddenly realized that the son and the mother had actively slipped into and joined the class.

I remember this because the boy had all the symptoms of what the Diagnostic and Statistical Manual of Mental Disorders (DSM IV – published 1994 with a 2000 text revision, and DSM-V in 2013 by the American Psychiatric Association) classify as a developmental disorder. My familiarity with this category stems from my having two PDD-NOS (pervasive development disorder not otherwise specified), aka ASD (autism spectrum disorder) children.

The category is perhaps new in the Chinese lexicon (the boy Lin Zi Kai's mom thinks that she might have bumped the child's head on something in his infancy) while the incidence is widespread around the world as we continue to chemically interfere with our metabolism in intakes we inject into food preservatives and additives, and possibly, even medications.

My children are now 17 and 20 this year, living 12 time zones away with their mom so I thought I already graduated from the front row seat of the autism theatre. With the challenge of enlightening many parents bewildered by a seeming disorientation of their children (in a culture where disabled kids until 1980 were commonly called "useless," can fei), I am back to shedding light on a subject that is just beginning to be addressed in China in spite of the fact that country's laws are very protective, generous, and supportive of the rights and prerogatives of the disabled.

It was about a decade ago when we got a phone call from Radio

Australia. Someone had been researching "autism in the Pacific" and a digital scanning of news items from the region discovered that the word "autism" had a fairer share of usage on Saipan than anywhere else in the Pacific except Hawaii. Somehow, the researcher got my name and phone number, and he wanted to know why.

We had self-organized parents of children diagnosed with ASD informally meeting at the IUMC's Resource Center in Oleai, and later at the short-lived STarPO office created with a PSS MOU in Chalan Kanoa. Parents tried to understand PSS' Special Education program where pedagogy for their children were administered, and a give-and-take relationship emerged.

Now, the Autism Society of the CNMI that meets at NMPASI in Gualo Rai has an organizational setup to accommodate parents' concerns about their PDD children. AS-CNMI is sponsoring a fundraising and fun Quiz Nite tomorrow night, Saturday. Aimed to promote awareness of ASD, the group by no means has contact with all parents whose children might have received the diagnosis. They need assistance to broaden service coverage. Also, given the stigma that still abides for children diagnosed with a "mental disorder," though we may not call them "useless children," they represent occasions when parents "explain them away" with all kinds of rationalization.

NMPASI is strong in considering the so-called "disabled" as merely "differently-abled." What is in a label? A hell of a difference! That is why I would encourage folks to attend the Quiz Nite Saturday at the Saipan World Resort Taga Hall, from 6pm to 10pm. Meet some of the children and the parents. No one has disposable income these days but a $20 contribution toward the night's activities will be appreciated.

Parents have recently been invited to participate in the ongoing review of DSM IV toward the new DSM V where ASD is defined. Send queries on this matter to JamesRayphand@yahoo.com (NMPASI), or, Silpavali@gmail.com (Marg Olopai-Taitano, Disabilities Council), or, Larissa.Larson@gmail.com (AS-CNMI).

I will be seeing Lin Zi Kai again, not because I have to but because this continuing drama of the inability to grasp the continuing glory and awe of human existence, however it shows up, tugs at the entrails of our soul. As the spirit moves, so do I.

NMI 'Uncertainty, Inc.'

By JOHN S. DELROSARIO JR.

Special to the Saipan Tribune

John DelRosario Jr. is a former publisher of the Saipan Tribune and a former secretary of the Department of Public Lands.

There is Japan Inc. that represents the working relationship between government and private industries to build the country's economic foundation. There are other Inc.s worldwide among powerful conglomerates engaged in global business transactions.

Recently, we happened upon what has evolved into "NMI Uncertainty, Inc." It represents a place where nothing works, as dazed politicians sing "Make the world go away," fully content. Take a glimpse at the failed performance of the do-nothings on the Hill. Stunningly puzzling is the obvious lack of urgency to step-up to the plate of proactive leadership.

Interesting that most politicians have bought prime stocks under the most prestigious political club: NMI Uncertainty, Inc. They'd soon be feasting on lunch and dinner at taxpayers' expense to celebrate their new purchases and membership, too.

In bad times, people usually look toward their so-called leadership for answers. There's none! Perhaps the seeming lack of urgency and leadership are attributable to their comfortable income way above average salaries among the struggling multitude. For some, we even pay for their utilities, transportation and gasoline, not to mention security services.

Maybe these perks have numbed their senses as to fail to do reality checks on the livelihood of the folks they've promised brighter tomorrows. Such promise, sadly, has dimmed permanently. Fecklessness is the new culture they have honed and wear daily.

They relish their loot from the backbreaking tax contributions paid for by taxpayers. Interesting the imposition of austerity against taxpayers while exempting their hefty salaries. Here is where one could easily detect if they have the interest of the multitude at heart or is it simply empty political spins easily pulled out of their plantation of fecklessness and mediocrity.

The troubling issue with fecklessness is whether this is a microcosm of our future. If so, do we take it lying down? If not, what then must we do to recapture the future of these isles? Is there hope when we next meet a new break of dawn? Or is it more a case of "NMI Uncertainty Inc?"

Paradise: Whatever happened?

The island is the playground of tourists from Japan and Asia. They flock to the Taga Stone famous isles of the CNMI especially during cold winter months. It's a wonderful place to stretch out on our immaculate beaches and swim in our crystal clear warm waters.

After three days, they return home with prestigious tan and pleasant memories of frolicking in warm waters and pleasant weather of tropical island paradise.

Be that as it may, none of them know that islanders are struggling under disastrous economic conditions at home. After work they re-

The pros are on the job. Let them do their work. The professional investigators will investigate, and the professional reporters will report. I have neither role in this matter. So I'm not going to buzz around with idle speculation.

In fact, you might have noticed that I'm never on the gadfly and gossip train. Some of my pals chastise me for shying away from "hot" stories. And, true, I've never taken that road. So I might as well tell you why.

First, though, kindly note that I'm not trying to dictate how other people behave. I'm just sharing my own outlook when it comes to communications after tragedies.

I've spent a lot of my career in aviation. One unpleasant truth is that in the industry, accidents happen. For example, a long time ago, one of my friends was killed in a helicopter incident and the buzz, buzz, busybody buzz of the gadflies started immediately.

It was exactly like watching flies materialize, seemingly out of nowhere, to swarm upon a dead animal, or upon a fallen breadfruit.

That particular accident wasn't the first time I lost a friend like that, but it was the first time I had to deal with it as a manager. Be-turn to their substandard houses to rest. It isn't the bright sun that blurs their vision as much as future job security as tourism sways dangerously at the base. Would they still have jobs in the near term? How much longer would revenue streams suffer huge plummet? Would they be able to weather more utility fee hikes?

The term "paradise" becomes a tool of promotions only relevant to travel agencies that use it to lure more visitors to the island. Islanders know that wrapped in the mutilated term is an entirely different place best described as "hellish hole."

With reduced work hours, stagnant salaries or joblessness, or simply giving up looking for work, these setbacks hardly measure up against increases in costly basic commodities, gasoline, healthcare, and utility fees. Coupled with impending foreclosures of first family homes makes one wonder if the ruination of paradise is in fact the vision by our so-called leadership. You be the judge!

For responsible citizens, there's the lingering question: Where did we go wrong as to fail to guard and sustain the good economic times that descended in the late '80s and early '90s? It seems that the comforts of mañana led the CNMI into the complacency corner. The long snooze has led to embracing economic annihilation wrought by destructive federal impositions. The elected elite was caught dazed when real challenges emerged. They haven't a clue what hit these isles in tsunami like fashion.

The so-called leadership basked in the thrill of power, ignoring the urgency of fundamental policies needing immediate rectification. There's the discriminatory land policy that removes "equal protection" for some citizens and others legally situated. This infraction alone is the most prohibitive and discouraging. It raises questions about protection for non-citizens. This and other shortsighted policies including slighting foreign businesses in favor of locals in the enforcement of tax obligations are sufficient for our partners to think with their feet. The former is taxed to the hilt while the latter is purposely exempt. The playing field is woefully uneven!

Coupled with the obvious lack of a sound legal code, anti-business policies that kill rather than encourage expansion and new business startups, we now sit repeating Einstein's definition of "insanity": Juggling the same thing over and over again hoping for different results.

It's oxymoronic to use the term "leadership" when most folks here know full well that it doesn't exist.

Everything is government, oops!

The CNMI's seeming specialty is government. But a glimpse at what it does with fast depleting resources is contrary to any sense of frugality.

The bloated payroll needs some $3million to $4 million per pay period. Taxpayers quiz: What do we get out of this deal where the plantation of mediocrity is blossoming even during winter months?

Lately, there's a proposal to permit the sale of public land now under lease to hotels and golf resorts. It's a tale of the obvious desperation to navigate the fast depleting resources of the local government headed to Bankruptcy Cliff.

It seems our lords are still snoozing, acquiescing worsening economic conditions, dazed and paralyzed. The obvious lack of any sense of urgency doesn't offer much hope to rebuilding a ruined bridge they've seen fit to destroy and ignore. Whatever happened to "Everything Is Government?" A`Saina! Si JR.

fore that event I had never paid attention to gossips. Heck, I didn't even know any gossips.

So, all those years ago, I had to come up with some sort of theory on the gig. My theory? Gadflies seemed like lonely people who craved attention, or they were people who wanted to feel important by having something important to say. The worse the tragedy, the more important they felt by piggybacking on the event. And they didn't always employ criticism, by the way, but sometimes made grand displays of haughty sanctimony. Either way, the common element was always an air of attention-seeking superiority. That might sound like a rag-tag, homespun theory, because that's indeed what it was, but nothing I've seen since contradicts it.

Meanwhile, over the decades, in various situations, I had to field some calls from spouses or children of pilots who met with disaster. These survivors were sometimes tormented by how the pilot's legacy had been defiled by the tongue-waggers. After all, the public mind, like a sponge, merely absorbs what is around it. So the paradox here is that the knowledgeable people know enough to wait until the facts are in, which, in aviation, might take years to sort out, while the gadflies, of course, exercise no such discipline.

So the gadflies will merrily pollute the well before any normal person knows, or even cares, where the well is. By the time everyone finally meanders over to drink of the discourse, the damage has been done. You can't undo it.

Aviation isn't the only realm that is dogged by this factor. The military, maritime, and law enforcement worlds also have to deal with it, where any professional is just one bad moment away from a gadfly swarm around his grave, around his reputation, around his family, around his buddies. Many Saipan residents, and, beyond that, many readers of this column, have worked in these realms, so I

Letter of appreciation

I would like to take this opportunity to convey my heartfelt appreciation to Ms. Vanessa Fitial from CUC's Financial Accounts Management for taking the time on Thursday, Feb. 2, to resolve the dilemma concerning the disconnection of water for Retsa Horizon Apartments located on Pila Drive, Sadog Tasi.

Disconnected for two days without any explanation or notice from CUC, we were compelled to purchase 3,000 gallons of water to temporarily accommodate the needs of our tenants. Needless to say, most government employees would have referred the case to another person than to take the initiative to do the right thing and settle the dispute amicably. After using up five hours of her time that day, Ms. Fitial was very instrumental in turning the water back on in the evening.

Thank you again, on behalf of the tenants residing at Retsa Horizon Apartments, for your undivided attention and courtesy you have unselfishly extended to me that day! We certainly need more people like you to better serve the public. Keep up the good work, and God bless you for making my day!

Biba election 2012!

Another election is coming up. Have the CNMI voters learned from their mistakes of voting for Covenant candidates? Will the same old career politicians like Paul Manglona, Pete Reyes, Jude Hofschneider, Ralph Torres, Stanley Torres, Froilan Tenorio, Ray Basa, Mike Ada, Fred DL Guerrero, Raymond Palacios, Melvin Faisao, Sly Iguel, George Camacho, Eli Cabrera, and Felicidad Ogumoro win again?

Will there be quality candidates with education, experience, and the conscience of doing what is right for the people, instead of following Fitial's path of greed and corruption? Tony Pellegrino, Robert Torres (attorney), Alex Sablan (Pitu), Dr. Daniel Lamar, Tina Sablan, Ed Propst, Edward Salas, Jesse Torres, Betty Cabrera, Angelo Villagomez, Laurie Peterka, Ambrose Bennett, Fred Prosser, and others: Please run for office so we can rebuild the CNMI and get rid of Fitial's followers.

Letters to the Editor

99 percent? More like the 1 percent of the 1 percent

This is in response to Diego C. Blancos letter lashing out at what he calls the 1 percent of Saipan. I read practically every single article and letter to the editor of the Saipan Tribune and Marianas Variety almost everyday. I have yet to find one letter or article criticizing island culture or the blatant racism you speak of in your letter. The 1 percent you speak of just happens to be the 99 percent. You, Ben, Stanley, and your gang are the 1 percent.

We are the folks who aren't afraid to speak their mind or afraid to complain about a failed and corrupt governmental system in the islands that we all call home. There are many folks complaining about the destruction of the CNMI as they know it, but they aren't the letter writing type of people. But you will hear all of these complaints around the picnic table you so fondly described in your letter.

You seem to love the status quo. You would have things stay exactly the way they are and that explains to those of us reading your letter quite a bit about you, Mr. Blanco. You are one of the 1 percent of Saipan who benefit from the system of corruption and nepotism. You said, "Locals go to church and don't like spending their time on golf courses." That's strange, because I'm a pretty fair golfer and the worst thrashing I ever received in a lifetime of playing of golf was by a person of Northern Marianas descent. I don't see only folks of NMD in church on Saipan. Same for the hotel buffets. That's usually where I see most of my friends of NMD. But in reality, I see a pretty good mix of all races golfing and at the buffets. Haven't seen you at church though.

You complain about the folks there on work contracts. Are there enough NMD to fill all the teaching and administrative positions? Do you know why there aren't enough NMD to fill most of the other positions? Because the economy, which has been ruined by the last three governors, your Uncle Ben included, has caused a brain drain in the CNMI. All the best and brightest have run away to Guam or the U.S. mainland, where they don't have to deal with the system in the CNMI.

You state folks might get the wrong idea about public opinion of the CNMI. How would you know public opinion when you spend a majority of your time on a barstool next to Stanley Torres or hanging out with Uncle Ben? Everyone in the CNMI knows that they, like you, are out of touch with the realities of life and public opinion on Saipan. Ironically, we all know your favorite hangouts are Coffe Care and Godfather's with Stanley and the gang.

What I gather from reading opinions about the CNMI is that there is a never ending pouring out of disgust and frustration by writers regarding the failed political system and the rampant corruption of the various politicians and their administrations over the last 20 or so years. If you consider that part of island culture then I guess you'd be right about the complaints, but you're not and you know it.

The complaints are as always: about the corruption and stupidity of the CNMI's elected officials and their inability to fix the problems that plague the CNMI. Not complaining about the island culture or the locals. If you really read the letters to the editor and not listen to the sound bites being read to you, you will find that most of the writers believe many positive things about the CNMI and that we believe there are a great many folks in office trying to do an honest and good job, yet they are voted down and marginalized by the lazy, inept, and corrupt ones in power. That is what the writers are lamenting—the things that make the CNMI special are being ruined by folks like Ben, Stanley, and yourself.

To keep the focus off yourselves, you, Stanley and Froilan blame letter writers like me for the changes happening to the CNMI. Change is inevitable. It is time for the CNMI government to make changes that will have a benefit for all who live in the CNMI, not a select 1 percent and to behave in a Christian manner, stop the downward spiral of the economy and guide the changes to the CNMI to maintain those special qualities the CNMI is known for.

You call out about the plight of the NMD, yet your last name, Blanco, has its origins in the Philippines. That means you aren't even of NMD. Also, if I remember correctly, you've spent the better part of your life living in Palau and your spouse is also of non-NMD. Sort of like the pot calling the kettle black. (If you don't know what that means and from what I know of you personally, you don't, so have your letter writer explain it to you. Your writer, by the way, sounds a lot like your buddy, Stanley Torres' writer.)

You don't like hearing the constant complaints about the overpaid, under-qualified government workers. Granted, there are many who do actually have the qualifications indicated in the job description and do work hard and honestly to get the job done. However, there are many, many folks like you who don't have the education requirements for the job they are being paid for; what they do have is the family connection. What is wrong to complain about that? You claim that as the local culture. That is not island culture. What about the local who does have the education requirement, yet can't get a government job because someone like you is holding that position. I guess you think that is unfair, that we write and complain about that type of situation to the newspapers also.

You also failed to mention the complaints writers have about convicted felons holding government jobs. If you think that it is OK to have a job you aren't qualified for or its OK that you bypassed government hiring standards and got your job because of who you know or are related to, then that makes you a part of the problem facing the CNMI today. It's not that we, the letter writers are holding you to our high standards—we are holding you to the normal standard any honest society would have for its citizens and government officials alike. Not hard to understand.

What have you done for the CNMI Mr. Blanco lately? To steal a line from a quote in the Marianas Variety Comments Page: The last time you rode in the back of a pickup was when you lived in Palau. So don't try to sell yourself as one of the NMD people because you aren't and never will be. In closing, read the articles below regarding landownership and casinos or have yours and Stanley's writer read them to you. Article 12 by Jose S. Delacruz, Sept 30, 2008, <http://ccart12.com/wp-content/uploads/2009/04/handout2.pdf>. A voice against Casinos by Carlos Trujillo, State representative, Florida: http://www.miamiherald.com/2012/02/02/2621836\_p2/why-i-will-vote-against-casinos.html

On Greek tragedy and natural rights

Mr. Jim Pitts, I also don't know you. But you drowned yourself in a sea of heedless reactionary accusations without any basis in fact. My piece was written in an impersonal manner, purposely deleting specific names. A quick glimpse into my assessment will have you leaving the last sentence reciting Gomer Pyle's eternal expression, "Surprise, surprise, surprise!" in embarrassment.

You also came close to using the race card to express a universal human experience we all go through regardless of pigmentation. Sir, I think I am a good Christian and a staunch believer in the rights of all citizens and legally situated non-citizens. I cringe when I see locals fronting ethnocentric views on Article 12 that definitely works against everybody—lack of equal protection—and other disoriented policies here. But I agree with you that the responsibility of healthcare in the NMI remains that of this administration.

Too, I've spent about eight years going in and out of hospitals between here, Honolulu, UCLA Medical Center, and the Children's Hospital in San Diego when my son was a critical heart patient. I've learned enough and need not peep into suspect materials designed for profit to figure out the importance of knowing a hospital's backup system on critical medical cases involving invasive procedure followed by stint at the ICU, travails of folks with health issues without health insurance, etc. If I may digress.

Mr. Francisco R. Agulto wanted my views on "natural rights" dismissed, asserting that I left voids on some issues that require scholarly discussions. I humbly defer to his innuendo that I am a non-scholar, though I question if he's unilaterally captured the wisdom corner all to himself as to leave others in the land of intellectual privation. I know the principle on natural rights was hardly discussed during the Covenant negotiations, though it was done for delegates to the first NMI constitutional convention. Obviously they've missed it, given that it's heavy material and didn't have the gall to digest it.

I am a retired journalist with over 40 years under my belt. The discipline leaves an indelible professional skill of getting to the truth followed by a simple explanation of what's at issue. I have no plans to engage in disoriented or meandering scholarly discussion of the various rights that fly above the common people's heads for that could be interpreted as arrogance. I believe I've succeeded in this respect by using the KISS concept. Therefore, I'll leave scholarly discussions to self-professed scholars like you, sir.

You quoted one of history's most famous philosophers, John Locke, a wasteful scribble. You should have devoted that segment to presenting his views on "natural rights" emanating from the First Principles. John Locke observes in The Second Treatise on Civil Government, "The great chief end, therefore, of men uniting into commonwealths, and putting themselves under government, is the preservation of their property."

Locke did not create out of thin air the concept of natural law or property rights or the ordered relationship that was necessary between the sovereign and his subjects. He was well versed in the lessons of history before he ever put the first pen stroke on foolscap. The First Principles also defines the distinct difference between "natural," "civil," and "human" rights. Natural rights are God-given and are unalienable, meaning they can't be infringed or violated.

Look forward to reading your scholarly dissertation on natural rights but please ensure employing political and intellectual integrity in your explanation. I can't gloss over the fundamentally discriminatory aspect of Article 12 that not only turns "equal protection" on its head, but replaces over 400 years of land tenure system of individually owned private land here into collective ownership, a socialistic paradigm at best, a denial of full rights to landownership at worse. Presto!

THE ART

think they'll nod their heads in agreement on this point.

By contrast, in the modern age, more and more people have clerical careers, so I think the gadfly effect will grow. From what I've seen, gadflies usually have safe, petty little jobs on the sidelines of life. So they are quite unconcerned about them, themselves, being victimized by post-accident gossip someday. They will die like they lived: In boring, humdrum anonymity. Hence the smugness and, sometimes, false swagger.

Anyway, in any realm, and for whatever reason, my outlook has remained the same: I don't seek attention from anyone's grief or tragedy. I have seen too much of it, and I've seen how the communications dynamic plays out.

I am gratified to see that some good folks have put up cash rewards to help solve the Romero case. And my household, being very much run by a Filipina, takes this case to heart in the extreme. That's all I will say for now.

But buzz, buzz, busy-bee buzz? Never.

Letters to the Editor

Open discussion

My previous letter about the 99 percent elicited many online comments. That's good. I wanted to start an open discussion about the silent majority on Saipan, and the discussion certainly flourished. I enjoyed reading all the comments, even the ones that had nothing to do with my letter and everything to do with personal vendettas against me.

But the online comments prove my point. A certain 1 percent is very vocal on Article 12 and other issues, but their sheer numerical count is very low. Are we talking about perhaps 20 people (self-selected by plenty of time on their hands, not popularly elected as our leaders are) trying to represent these islands? And about 20 people—many of them just passers-by here—who want to permanently change landownership in the CNMI?

I signed my letter with my real name, and even where I live. I stand behind my comments. My life, my reputation, and my family's reputation are here on Saipan. Meanwhile, online commenter hide behind aliases in their drive-by attacks. Do they even live in the CNMI? Their attitudes and language aren't the ones I know from these beautiful islands.

welcome to live here, and even to spend all day posting angry comments and innuendos. All we ask of them is that they clean up after themselves, give respect where it's due, and leave land ownership here in the CNMI for us NMDs.

You gotta be kiddin'

Four baseball fields are being proposed for $21.5 million and Saipan Mayor Donald G. Flores believes this may be realized through federal assistance. Twenty-one million bucks of "other people's money," mainly U.S. federal grants, for a friggin' baseball field. You gotta be kiddin' me, dude. Your morals and ethics have been totally twisted, Mr. Mayor, if you're looking for free handouts to make baseball fields for Koreans and Japanese to hit a ball on while your kids are high on ice and your education system is struggling to meet the needs of a new high tech world.

What kind of people have you become? Your roads are rotting, your hospital is being driven into the ground and major Medicaid cuts will force even more problems on the sick, your coral reefs are rotting and bleaching with rapidly declining fish stocks, and your community has a massive drug problem, even your local political leaders are selling ice! What a moral disgrace for a small community.

You live on a tiny, isolated rock 5 miles by 10 miles in size and you have almost insurmountable economic problems to solve ASAP before Saipan becomes a ghost town financially and socially and your mayor is whimpering for "somebody, help us poor islanders get some free candy from Big Brother. Help me get a free handout." Where is your pride, CNMI? Your beat your chests about "Chamorro pride"....well, here it is...a whining, no self-respecting plea for free money to make baseball fields that Koreans can play in.

Oops, I forgot. The real reason the CNMI leadership wants that baseball field is that it means another backend cousin-to-cousin "locals-only land deal" where they can suck the U.S. federal government's tit and scam some money. That's the real deal and we all know it. It's not about developing a new island revenue stream from professional baseball in Asia. The yahoos up on Capital Hill wouldn't have a clue how to do any form of pro-sports business, and we all know the fields will end up looking like a Koberville jungle dump, all overgrown with beer cans on the lawn in three years. And empty of pro baseball teams. That's the real plan the mayor and his cronies are envisioning. Rome is burning, and your talking baseball fields?

I proudly display a CNMI flag on the wall of the living room at our house so that no one would miss it, and in the years it was in plain view to our visitors. A recent visitor to our house—a friend of mine from the mainland—saw the CNMI flag on the wall and stared at it. I asked why he had an eye glued to the CNMI flag. After a brief moment of explaining his lifetime passion for the arts as a retired performing arts professor in Massachusetts, he convincingly demonstrated to me that

How do I know I'm pregnant?

Most women don't suspect they are pregnant until they miss a period, and a few don't suspect or believe they are pregnant for months after conception. During this time you are missing valuable prenatal care.

Here are 5 common early signs of pregnancy. You may experience all, some, or none of these symptoms.

- Missed Period: Missing your period is the most noticeable sign of pregnancy. But it is not the only cause, as stress or other factors may cause irregular periods.
- Frequent Trips to the Bathroom: Even before missing a period, most pregnant women report having to go to the bathroom more often.
- Fatigue: Being tired is a very early sign of pregnancy.
- Morning (and Noon and Night!) Sickness: That queasy feeling isn't limited to mornings. Most pregnant women who experience morning sickness feel slightly nauseated and may have vomiting at other times during the day as well.
- Sore (and Enlarged) Breasts: If you're pregnant, your breasts may become tender to the touch, similar to the way they feel before your period, only more so.

If you have any of the above symptoms or suspect you are pregnant, come to the clinic for a pregnancy test as soon as possible! Don't wait!

Greek PM, debt inspectors end talks with no deal

ATHENS, Greece (AP)—A crucial meeting between Greece's Prime Minister and debt inspectors on averting default and a possible exit from the euro ended early Thursday with no definite results.

As he left the meeting, Finance Minister Evangelos Venizelos said the main point of contention—cuts in pensions—has not been resolved. He made a dramatic plea to the leaders of the political parties backing Greece's coalition government to reach an agreement before a meeting later Thursday of finance ministers from nations that use the euro.

Venizelos said Greece's "survival over the coming years" depends on the new program of financial aid and the completion of a debt swap agreement with private creditors that would slash Greece's debt load.

"It will determine whether the country remains in the eurozone or whether its place in Europe will be endangered," he said.

"There is no room for any other expediency: we must look Greeks in the eye, look at the national interest and the interest of our children."

Representatives of the so-called 'troika' of Greece's creditors—the European Union, the European Central Bank and the International Monetary Fund—arrived after midnight Wednesday to negotiate with Prime Minister Lucas Papademos, Venizelos and Labor Minister Giorgos Koutroumanis over the main point of contention: the troika's demand for substantial cuts in supplementary pensions.

The issue that has threatened to derail the talks concerns cuts of about euro300 million that must be made so Greece can reach its fiscal targets for 2012. At stake is a euro130 billion bailout that will stave off Greece's bankruptcy.

Venizelos will be leaving for Brussels at 7 a.m. local (0500 GMT). The eurozone finance ministers are scheduled to meet at 1700 GMT.

No time has been yet set for a meeting of Papademos with the three political leaders—socialist George Papandreou, conservative Antonis Samaras and right-wing populist George Karatzaferis. It is the latter two who have raised the most objections over the pension cuts.

On Wednesday, Papademos and the three political leaders had met for seven and a half hours and had accepted all the other demands of the troika, including a 22 percent cut in the minimum wage and firings of civil servants.

Murdoch firm settles 9 more hacking lawsuits

LONDON (AP)—Rupert Murdoch's News International has settled nearly all the cases against the company in the first wave of lawsuits for phone hacking by its journalists, with a new round of apologies and payouts announced Wednesday in a London court.

But a potentially damaging claim lodged by British singer Charlotte Church is still headed to trial later this month and a wave of new lawsuits—as many as 56 in all—is looming, lawyers told London's High Court.

News International, a division of News Corp., has tried hard to keep phone hacking cases from going to trial, launching its own compensation program overseen by a respected former judge and paying out millions of pounds (dollars) in all in out-of-court settlements for about 60 cases.

On Wednesday, lawyers announced that nine more lawsuits filed on behalf of about a dozen different people had been settled, including cases brought by comedian Steve Coogan, former soccer star Paul Gascoigne and maverick lawmaker George Galloway.

"This has never been about money," said Coogan, who received a settlement of 40,000 pounds ($63,500). "Like other people who have sued, I was determined to do my part to show the depths to which the press can sink in pursuit of private information."

Gascoigne received 68,000 pounds ($108,000), while Simon Hughes, deputy leader of Britain's Liberal Democrat party, received 45,000 pounds ($71,500). Galloway, known for his uncompromising opposition to the Iraq war, received 25,000 pounds ($39,700) and an admission from News International lawyer Michael Silverleaf that the company had intercepted five of the lawmaker's voicemails around the time of the 2003 invasion.

Sally King, a friend of former British Home Secretary David Blunkett, received 60,000 pounds ($95,300), while her husband, Andrew, received 50,000 pounds ($79,400). Silverleaf acknowledged that a News of the World journalist even followed the pair to the U.S. as they tried to find refuge there from the press.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

China's inflation rebounds in January to 4.5 pct

BEIJING (AP)—China's inflation rebounded in January as food prices soared, renewing pressure on Beijing to control living costs as it tries to boost slowing growth amid warnings of a looming global downturn. Consumer prices in the world's second-largest economy rose by an unexpectedly strong 4.5 percent over a year earlier, up from December's 4.1 percent, data showed Thursday. Food prices jumped 10.5 percent, accelerating from the previous month's 9.1 percent rate. "It makes us more concerned that the risk of inflation is not going away," said Nomura economist Zhiwei Zhang. Among Chinese planners "it will reinforce concerns about inflation that already were there."

Oil below $99 as US crude demand lags economy

SINGAPORE (AP)—Oil prices hovered below $99 a barrel Thursday in Asia as U.S. crude demand lags the overall improvement in the world's biggest economy. Benchmark crude for March delivery was up 11 cents at $98.82 a barrel at midday Singapore time in electronic trading on the New York Mercantile Exchange. The contract rose 30 cents to settle at $98.71 on Wednesday. Brent crude was steady at $117.20 a barrel on the ICE Futures Exchange in London. Crude has hovered near $100 for the last few months as economic indicators, such as better than expected jobs data, suggests the U.S. economy is strengthening.

Source: NY, California to sign mortgage settlement

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—New York and California have agreed to sign the proposed settlement between U.S. states and the nation's biggest mortgage lenders over foreclosure abuses, according to a source close to the negotiations. Bank of America, JPMorgan Chase, Wells Fargo, Citibank and Ally Financial agreed to the settlement—for an estimated $37 billion as of Wednesday for lowering homeowners' mortgage principal, refinancing, a reserve account, and checks to homeowners. However, they were seeking releases from further legal liability, which have been one subject of negotiations for the past several days with state attorneys general who wanted to pursue investigations.

For Santorum, new challenges follow his big wins

ALLEN, Texas (AP)—One day after Rick Santorum's startling breakthrough in the presidential race, his few aides decamped to distant states to start building campaign organizations from scratch. It was evidence of his challenge in converting sudden momentum into victories in the rush of contests ahead.

"We definitely are the campaign right now with the momentum, the enthusiasm on the ground," the former Pennsylvania senator said Wednesday, hours after capturing Republican caucuses in Minnesota and Colorado and a non-binding primary in Missouri.

"We feel like going forward we're going to have the money we need to make the case we want," he said.

To replenish his coffers, Santorum arranged a weekend of fundraising events in California. It's good timing, too: In the day since he won Tuesday's contests, Santorum raised more than $1 million as donors started to take a second look at his candidacy. He plans to start campaigning in Washington state on Monday, and then Ohio and Michigan in the following days.

At the same time, aides conceded he was making little or no effort in the caucuses in Maine that end this weekend, and they are still working on plans for competing in primaries in Michigan and Arizona on Feb. 28, as well as the delegate-rich, 10-state Super Tuesday a week later. ■ ■ ■

ATLANTA (AP)—Mitt Romney still can't seem to win over the bulk of the conservatives who make up the bedrock of the Republican Party.

Despite primary victories that have established him as the GOP presidential front-runner, his stunning trio of defeats this week laid bare the difficulties that still could undercut his path to the party's nomination—and hamper him in the general election to follow.

Not that he would acknowledge as much Wednesday.

"I don't think the conservative base changes its mind day to day," Romney told reporters, dismissing the notion that he's got a problem with the party's core supporters. "The places where I campaigned actively, we got actually in some respects record support from the conservative base."

Such denials aside, Tuesday's three-state caucus sweep by Rick Santorum illustrated the degree to which many conservative voters remain skeptical of Romney's commitment to the GOP base's principles, especially given what some of them see as his history of shifting priorities. And he hasn't been able to sell them on his main argument—that he's the most likely in the primary field to beat Democratic President Barack Obama.

Hopes fade for dozens buried in PH quake

MANILA, Philippines (AP)—Philippine officials conceded Wednesday that there was little hope of finding any survivors among 71 people still buried in landslides set off by a powerful earthquake, as jittery residents stayed away from their homes amid a flurry of aftershocks.

Soldiers, rescue volunteers and villagers using picks and shovels have not found anyone alive under concrete rubble and tons of rocks and mountain soil since the magnitude-6.9 quake struck two townships in central Negros Oriental province on Monday. So far, 26 bodies have been recovered and identified.

"I am still hoping against hope, but the chances (of recovering survivors) are very slim. If you see the landslide, it's huge and there is no chance of them surviving," said Benito Ramos, head of the Office of Civil Defense.

Ramos accompanied President Benigno Aquino III on a visit to the disaster area, during which Aquino ordered the immediate construction of detour roads to revive commerce and speed up the delivery of relief supplies.

Aquino criticized the shoddy road construction, while Ramos said bridges that were damaged were not built to sustain such a strong quake.

Eleven bridges reportedly were damaged in Negros Oriental, three of them beyond repair.

Philippine seismologists said they were previously unaware of the undersea fault line that caused the tremor, which sent rocks, trees and

"The aftershocks are enlarging the cracks of the roads."

With more bodies expected to be recovered, Guihulngan Mayor Ernesto Reyes said his town of 100,000 people might run out of coffins. At least 23 people were still missing there.

The Philippines is in the Pacific "Ring of Fire," where earthquakes and volcanic activity are common. The damage and casualties are compounded by poor construction in violation of building codes in the impoverished nation.

Pakistan: Second US drone strike in 2 days; 3 dead

PESHAWAR, Pakistan

(AP)—A U.S. drone fired two missiles at a house in Pakistan's northwest tribal region, killing three suspected militants in the second such attack in as many days, Pakistani intelligence officials said.

The back-to-back strikes could be an indication the drone program is picking up steam again after a slowdown caused by tensions with Pakistan over accidental American airstrikes that killed 24 Pakistani soldiers last year.

The U.S. held off on carrying out drone strikes for over six weeks after the deadly accident on Nov. 26. There have been a handful of attacks since they resumed in January, but the last two are the first consecutive strikes since the border incident.

The house hit before dawn on Thursday was located in the main bazaar in Miran Shah, the biggest town in the North Waziristan tribal area, the country's main sanctuary for Taliban and al-Qaida militants, said Pakistani intelligence officials. They spoke on condition of anonymity because they were not authorized to talk to the media.

The strike killed three suspected militants and wounded three others, but their exact identities were unknown, said the officials.

U.S. missiles hit a house in North Waziristan's Spalga village on Wednesday, killing nine people, including some domestic Taliban militants, said Pakistani intelligence officials, who also spoke on condition of anonymity.

President Barack Obama spoke publicly about the covert CIA-run drone program for the first time in a recent interview. But he and other U.S. officials refuse to openly say more about the details of the strikes because they are classified.

Pakistani officials regularly denounce the strikes as a violation of the country's sovereignty, but the government is widely believed to have facilitated the program in the past. That cooperation has come under strain as the relationship between the two countries has deteriorated.

Pakistan was outraged by the U.S. attack that killed its soldiers at two Afghan border posts in November. Pakistan retaliated by closing its border to supplies meant for NATO troops in Afghanistan and by kicking the U.S. out of a base used by American drones.

The U.S. and Pakistan disagree over who should be blamed for the incident, but there are signs that tensions are easing.

ASIAN BRIEFS

Tibetan sets himself on fire in China

BEIJING (AP)—Another Tibetan has set himself on fire in western China to protest government policies while thousands marched in another part of China to show support for their exiled spiritual leader, the Dalai Lama, a report said. U.S.-funded Radio Free Asia said a man, apparently a monk, set himself on fire in Sichuan province's Aba prefecture on Wednesday and was taken away by soldiers and police. His condition was not immediately clear. It said the man shouted slogans before setting himself ablaze, citing a statement from Losang Yeshe and Kanyag Tsiring, exiled Tibetan monks in India.

Report: Building toppled by NZ quake substandard

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (AP)—A six-story building that collapsed and killed 115 people during last year's New Zealand earthquake did not meet construction standards and was held up by significantly weak columns, according to a government report released Thursday. The report was contested by the building's designer, which called it "technically inadequate." The Canterbury Television (CTV) building in Christchurch fell into a smoldering heap during the magnitude-6.1 earthquake on Feb. 22. It accounted for nearly two-thirds of the quake's 184 victims.

EU threatens new sanctions on Syria

BEIRUT (AP)—The European Union will impose harsher sanctions on Syria, a senior EU official said Wednesday, as Russia tried to broker talks between the vice president and the opposition to calm violence. Activists reported at least 50 killed in the regime's siege of the restive city of Homs.

Russia, a close ally of Syria, and the West are pushing down starkly different paths in trying to deal with Syria's nearly 11 months of bloodshed. After blocking a Western and Arab attempt to bring U.N. pressure on President Bashar Assad to step down, Russia has launched a bid to show it can resolve the turmoil.

Moscow is calling for a combination of reforms by the regime and negotiations, without calling for Assad to go. Its provisions are so far finding no traction with the opposition, which dismisses promises of reform as empty gestures, refuses any negotiations while violence continues and says Assad's removal is the only option in the crisis.

Sarkozy advises against military strike on Iran

PARIS (AP)—French President Nicolas Sarkozy put his reputation as a stalwart friend of Israel on the line Wednesday, warning that military action was no way to deal with nuclear-minded Iran at a dinner hosted by France's main Jewish group—and his likely presidential election rival in the audience.

In the wake of new U.S. concerns that Israel might strike Iran's nuclear facilities this spring, Sarkozy reiterated his ironclad commitment to Israel's security but emphasized "the solution is never military."

"The solution is political, the solution is diplomatic, the solution is in sanctions," Sarkozy said, referring to a string of U.N. sanctions over Iran's nuclear program, which the West fears mask designs to build weapons.

"We want the leaders of this country to understand that they have crossed a red line, and to reassure Israeli leaders so that the irreparable is not carried out," Sarkozy said of possible military action.

Tehran, whose Islamist leaders have called for Israel's destruction, insists its nuclear program is peaceful and aimed at generating electricity and civilian-sector projects.

Vladimir Putin said outside forces should let Syrians settle their conflict "independently."

OFFBEAT BRIEFS

Kobayashi downs record

337 wings at Pa. Wing Bowl

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Competitive-eating champ Takeru Kobayashi conquered Philadelphia's annual gustatory gorge-fest by eating 337 chicken wings in a half-hour before a crowd of nearly 20,000 at Wing Bowl XX. The Japanese phenom demolished the record of 255 set last year by Jonathan "Super" Squibb. The Friday morning extravaganza drew thousands to the Wells Fargo Center before sunrise to watch competitors stuff themselves with chicken wings. Kobayashi claimed a $20,000 cash prize for his victory. It was the sixth time Nathan's Hot Dog eating contest champ's first time competing at Wing Bowl, though he consumed a cheesesteak in 24 seconds as part of an eating exhibition last year. Squibb had been trying to win his fourth consecutive Wing Bowl crown, but the Berlin, N.J., man finished a distant second with 271 wings.

Montana man fined $1K for instigating police chase

BUTTE, Mont. (AP)—A Butte man who told officers he instigated a police chase because he always wanted to try it, found out it'll cost him a $1,000 fine to go with his tire damage. The Montana Standard in Butte reports 55-year-old John C. Hughes pleaded guilty Thursday in City Court to reckless driving while eluding a peace officer. The chase began in the pre-dawn hours Thursday when officers reported a man followed a patrol car for seven blocks before pulling his SUV around and taking off at speeds of up to 70 mph. Officers say Hughes was traveling faster than 100 mph on the interstate before officers laid out a spike strip to flatten his tires. When asked why he started the chase, Hughes said, "I just always wanted to do that," according to the police report.

Butterfingers stunt tweaks Patriots' dropped pass

BOSTON (AP)—People aren't quite done piling on New England Patriots receiver Wes Welker for a dropped fourth-quarter pass that helped the New York Giants win the Super Bowl. An online pawnbroker dumped hundreds of Butterfinger candy bars in Boston's Copley Square on Tuesday with a note: "Thank you Wes Welker." The tongue-in-cheek stunt by Pawng.com drew takers for the candy and a citation from the city for commercial dumping. Pawng CEO Todd Hills says in a statement to The Boston Globe the Denver- and Chicago-based company "thought Boston fans might at least get a laugh out of it." He says the company respects Welker and the Patriots. Welker led the NFL with 122 receptions but dropped a slightly off-target pass from quarterback Tom Brady with about four minutes left Sunday night. The Giants won 21-17.

Judge: Buy wife flowers, then take her to dinner

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP)—A spat over forgetting to wish his wife a happy birthday landed a South Florida man in jail on domestic violence charges. When Judge "Jay" Hurley heard the circumstances that brought 47-year-old Joseph Bray to bond court Tuesday, he issued a unique ruling. Hurley ordered Bray to buy a birthday card and flowers for his wife before taking her to dinner at Red Lobster and bowling afterward. Hurley ruled the couple should begin seeing a marriage counselor immediately. The South Florida Sun Sentinel reports Hurley felt this was a "better resolution" since the incident was minor and Bray had no prior arrests. Bray's wife told the judge she's not afraid of her husband. A police report indicates Bray pushed his wife during an argument but never hit her.

CNN suspends analyst for Beckham comments

NEW YORK (AP)—CNN suspended political analyst Roland Martin on Wednesday for “offensive” tweets during the Super Bowl that some critics said were anti-gay.

Martin commented on Twitter about a commercial during the Super Bowl that showed soccer star David Beckham in underwear: “If a dude at your Super Bowl party is hyped about David Beckham’s H&M underwear ad, smack the ish out of him.”

The Gay and Lesbian Alliance Against Defamation said the remark advocated violence against gays. Martin said that he was making a joke about soccer and that he doesn’t support violence against anyone.

Martin also tweeted: “Who the hell was that New England Patriot they just showed in a head to toe pink suit? Oh, he needs a visit from (hash)teamwhipdataass.”

Martin later issued an apology on his website saying he was “truly sorry” to those who felt his tweet was anti-gay, homophobic or advocating violence.

“I’m disheartened that my words would embolden prejudice,” he said.

CNN said Wednesday that Martin’s remarks were “regrettable and offensive” and he will not be on air “for the time being.”

“Language that demeans is inconsistent with the values and culture of our organization, and is not tolerated,” CNN said.

Katy Perry, Russell Brand finalize divorce

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A judge has granted Katy Perry and Russell Brand a divorce, although the pair won't be legally split up until July.

Los Angeles Superior Court Judge Marc Marmaro signed the judgment Wednesday, less than six weeks after Brand filed for divorce and one day after Perry filed paperwork stating that she and Brand have agreed on all financial issues.

The exact terms of the breakup are confidential.

Brand, Perry and Marmaro all signed the judgment Wednesday, court records show. The couple will become legally single again on July 14 because California law requires that couples wait at least six months after filing before their divorce can be finalized.

The judgment calls for Perry's maiden name, Katheryn Elizabeth Hudson, to be restored.

Neither Brand, a British actor and comedian, or Perry, a pop superstar, indicated in court filings when they separated.

They were married in October 2010 in a lavish wedding at a resort inside a tiger reserve in India.

Their wedding came at a high-point for both of their careers. Brand was introduced to U.S. audi-

Perry has turned out a string of pop hits, including "I Kissed a Girl" and "California Gurls" and is scheduled to perform at Sunday night's Grammy Awards. She has also been nominated for two awards for her song "Firework."

Schwarzenegger joins Stallone in 'The Tomb'

LOS ANGELES (AP)—It's an action superstar reunion: Arnold Schwarzenegger is joining Sylvester Stallone for the thriller "The Tomb."

The filmmakers said Wednesday that Schwarzenegger has signed on to star alongside Stallone in the prison-break adventure.

Schwarzenegger previously had a cameo in Stallone's action hit "The Expendables" and also appears in its upcoming sequel.

Schwarzenegger

"The Tomb" will feature Schwarzenegger as an inmate opposite Stallone, who plays the designer of a master prison forced to escape from his own jailhouse. Directed by Mikael Hafstrom, "The Tomb" begins shooting in Louisiana this spring.

Schwarzenegger is just finishing work on "The Last Stand," his first starring role since returning to acting after serving as California's governor.

The Beach Boys to start party early at Grammys

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Get the sunglasses and tanning oil out: The Beach Boys are reuniting at The Grammys Awards for their first live performance in more than two decades. The original lineup of Brian Wilson, Mike Love, Al Jardine, Bruce Johnston and David Marks will be joined by Grammy nominees Foster the People and Maroon 5 in a special performance. A news release Wednesday also says The Civil Wars, Diana Krall and Joe Walsh have been added to the performance lineup and Common, Reba McEntire and Diana Ross will be presenters. The Beach Boys announced late last year that they would reunite to celebrate their 50th anniversary with a new album and tour. The Grammy Awards will be broadcast live Sunday night on CBS.

Rock Hall adds 6 groups to list of inductees

CLEVELAND (AP)—The Rock and Roll Hall of Fame says six additional groups will be inducted this year after a committee determined they should be recognized with previously enshrined original lead singers. The Blue Caps, the Comets, the Crickets, the Famous Flames, the Midnights and the Miracles will be inducted at the April ceremony in Cleveland. The Crickets' Buddy Holly and the Famous Flames' James Brown were inducted in 1986. The Comets' Bill Haley and the Miracles' Smokey Robinson were inducted in 1987. The Midnights' Hank Ballard was inducted in 1990 and the Blue Caps' Gene Vincent was inducted in 1998. Previously announced inductees are the Beastie Boys, Donovan, Guns N' Roses, Laura Nyro, Red Hot Chili Peppers, The Small Faces/The Faces, Freddie King, Don Kirshner, Cosimo Matassa, Tom Dowd and Glyn Johns.

Dr. House hangs up his Fox TV stethoscope

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Fox's medical drama "House" is ending its eight-year run this season.

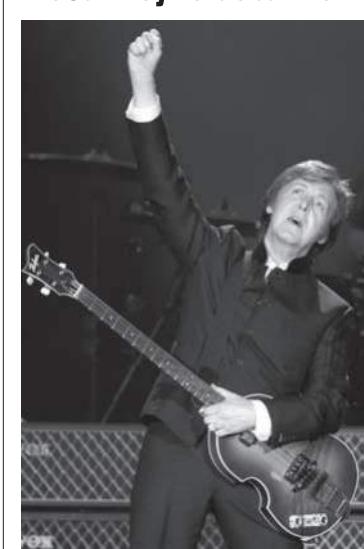

The show's producers, including Emmy-nominated star Hugh Laurie, said it was a "painful" decision but that the time had come to bring "House" to a close.

The drama stars Laurie as Dr. Gregory House, a brilliant but troubled physician with a gift for unraveling medical mysteries. Omar Epps, Robert Sean Leonard and Charlyne Yi are part of the ensemble cast.

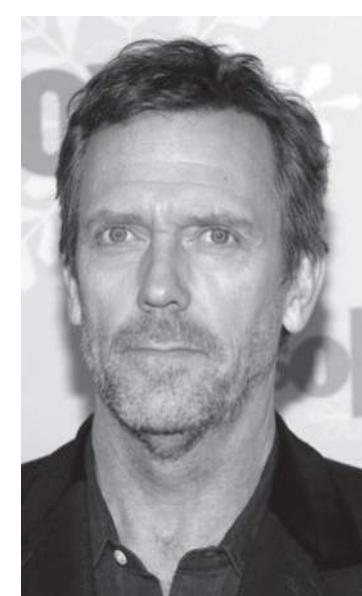

In a statement Wednesday, Laurie and his fellow producers said they imagined Dr. House as an "enigmatic creature," and that it was best for him to vanish while there was still mystery in the air.

The season finale date for "House," which airs 9 p.m. EST Monday, was not announced.

The performance takes place at 10 p.m. EST Thursday from Capitol Studios in Los Angeles where much of the new album was recorded.

"Kisses on the Bottom" features McCartney's interpretation of several beloved standards like "I'm Gonna Sit Right Down and Write Myself a Letter," "Ac-Cent-Tchu-Ate The Positive" and "Bye Bye Blackbird," and has two new songs, "My Valentine" with Eric Clapton and "Only Our Hearts" with Stevie Wonder.

The former Beatle recorded the album with the help of Diana Krall and her backing band.

Husband behind the wheel is cruising for a bruising

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
UNIVERSAL PRESS SYNDICATE

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: There is an ongoing issue between my husband and me. It's his disregard for my personal safety. Our large city is known for its heavy, fast traffic and impatient drivers. "Jon" is a good driver. He likes to drive in the left (passing) lane on the highway or tollway, usually about five miles above the posted speed limit.

This is considered too slow for many drivers, who become impatient and aggressive having to be behind us in the fast lane. They flash their headlights and tailgate us, trying to get him to move over into the right lane so they can pass, but Jon refuses to yield. If they start to pass us on the right, he will speed up and race them so they can't get ahead of him. He says he's "teaching them a lesson."

I have told my husband repeatedly that these games are dangerous and they scare me. Not only could we get into an accident, but we could get into an ugly confrontation or worse. I am terrified in these situations and he knows it, but he continues. I try to drive as often as possible, but I can't see as well at night as I used to, so Jon drives at night or when we're going long distances. With the price of gas and considering the inconvenience and inefficiency, it doesn't make sense to go in separate cars. Do you have any suggestions?

ON A COLLISION COURSE IN HOUSTON

DEAR ON A COLLISION COURSE: Jon should be told that impeding the flow of traffic is a very dangerous practice. His childish behavior could incite road rage, and it is everyone's responsibility to minimize instances in which road rage can occur.

Contact the Department of Public Safety to get a copy of the Texas Drivers Handbook. That way you can show Jon in black and white that his behavior is not only wrong but dangerous. While some husbands are not receptive to a wife's comments about their driving, most will listen to what a state trooper has to say about good driving practices versus bad ones. Let's hope it doesn't come to that.

And one more word of advice: Continue being the driver as often as possible. Your lives could depend on it.

DEAR ABBY: I was discussing with my 26-year-old daughter how parents punish their kids, when suddenly she told me that she hated that I would make her write "lines" when she was growing up. She mentioned that one day I made her do it when her friend was there to play with her. I felt really bad about this and wonder why she is bringing this up now.

WONDERING DOWN SOUTH

DEAR WONDERING: It came up now because punishment was the topic of conversation, and she flashed back on how humiliating it was to have been punished in front of a friend. Clearly it made an impact — and it would be interesting to know if the infraction was repeated after that.

Parker leads Spurs over Sixers, 100-90

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—San Antonio's Tony Parker scored 37 points to lead the Spurs to a 100-90 win over the Philadelphia 76ers in Wednesday's clash of two NBA divisional leaders.

Gary Neal added 18 off the bench for the Southwest Division-leading Spurs, who improved their road record to 5-8, against their impressive home record of 13-1.

Lou Williams scored 22 points for the Atlantic Division-leading Sixers, who are 4-2 nearing the end of a seven-game stretch against the league's top teams. They have lost to the Spurs and Miami but beat Orlando, Chicago, Atlanta and the Los Angeles Lakers.

Magic 102, Heat 89

In Orlando, Dwight Howard had 25 points and 24 rebounds as long-shooting Orlando beat Miami.

Ryan Anderson scored 27 for the Magic, who hit 17 3-pointers. Anderson had five 3s—all in the first half—and grabbed 11 rebounds while Howard posted his 20th double-double of the season.

Orlando set a team record with 42 3-point attempts but were two short of the record for most converted.

Dwyane Wade led the Heat with 33 points, but only 11 after halftime, as Miami's three-game streak was ended.

Hawks 97, Pacers 87

In Atlanta, Josh Smith scored 28 points and grabbed 12 rebounds as Atlanta defeated Indiana to snap a three-game home losing streak.

The Hawks, who had fallen behind by big margins in each game on the homestand, finally got off to a good start. Atlanta built a 21-point lead in the first half and withstood repeated runs by Indiana over the final two quarters.

Joe Johnson added 20 points for the Hawks.

Danny Granger scored 21 points to lead the Pacers, who have lost nine straight in Atlanta, dating back to 2006.

Mavericks 105, Nuggets 95

In Denver, Dirk Nowitzki scored 25 points as Dallas snapped a three-game losing skid by beating undermanned Denver.

Vince Carter added 17 for the Mavericks, who won despite the ongoing absence of the injured Jason Kidd.

Rudy Fernandez and Al Harrington each had 17 points off the bench to lead the Nuggets, who lost their fourth straight.

Arron Afflalo and Nene returned to Denver's lineup after sitting out Monday's loss to Houston, but Denver was still without leading scorer Danilo Gallinari (left ankle) and Timofey Mozgov (left ankle).

San Antonio Spurs' Tony Parker, right, goes up for shot as Philadelphia 76ers' Jrue Holiday (11) defends in the second half of an NBA basketball game on Wednesday, Feb. 8, 2012, in Philadelphia.

Corey Brewer was absent following the death of his father.

Rockets 103, Trail Blazers 96

In Portland, Chase Budinger had 22 points off the bench to lead Houston past Portland.

Starting guard Kyle Lowry had 12 points before he left with an arm injury late in the third quarter and he did not return. The extent of the injury was not immediately known.

Jamal Crawford came off the bench to score 21 points for the Trail Blazers, who rallied to tie it 77-77 in the fourth quarter.

Bulls 90, Hornets 67

In New Orleans, Chicago held New Orleans in check, with the hosts only just avoiding a franchise-record low score.

Marco Belinelli's 3-pointer with just a second left carried the Hornets past the club low of 65 points.

Carlos Boozer scored 18 points and Joakim Noah had 13 points and 10 rebounds for the Bulls, who won their fourth straight game.

Chris Kaman scored 17 for the Hornets.

15 in the third quarter, but could not get ahead.

Los Angeles was playing its first game without injured guard Chauncey Billups, out for the season with a torn Achilles tendon.

Bucks 105, Raptors 99

In Toronto, Carlos Delfino scored a season-high 25 points against his former team as Milwaukee won its first game in four, beating Toronto.

Delfino, who played for the Raptors in 2007-08, matched his season high with nine rebounds.

Drew Gooden had 20 points and 14 rebounds for the Bucks, who have won seven of the past eight against the Raptors.

DeMar DeRozan scored 25 points for Toronto, which has lost three straight.

Knicks 107, Wizards 93

In Washington, Jeremy Lin had 23 points and a career-high 10 assists as New York beat Washington and notched a third straight win.

Tyson Chandler scored 25 points with 11 rebounds, finishing two points short of his career high, but it was Lin's night again. Following his breakout games of 25 points against New Jersey and 28 against Utah, Lin was 9 for 14 from the field and 5 of 6 from the line.

The Knicks won again with

Billups vows to return from injury

CLEVELAND (AP)—Chauncey Billups will only watch as the Clippers continue their promising season without him.

This isn't going to be easy.

With his left leg encased in a plastic protective boot and a newly issued crutch standing nearby, Billups sprawled across a few seats Wednesday inside Quicken Loans Arena as his teammates went through their first pregame shootaround since their veteran guard and leader suffered a season-ending injury.

Billups tore his Achilles tendon, prematurely ending his first season with Los Angeles and 15th in the NBA.

He won't let it be his last.

"My career is definitely not over," the 35-year-old said. "I'm not going to crawl out of this league. I'm going to go out on my own two feet. I will be back."

Billups' season came to a stunning end in Orlando on Monday night, when he crumpled to the floor without being touched. After missing a 3-pointer in the fourth quarter, Billups took one step toward the loose ball when his leg buckled. As play went the other way, Billups assessed his injury and knew right away something was terribly wrong.

"When I first went down, it felt like someone kind of kicked me," Billups said. "But when I tried to get back up and step on it, I didn't feel anything and I knew it was something I had never felt before and I knew it was bad."

Tests taken Tuesday at the Cleveland Clinic confirmed the Achilles tear, a serious injury requiring eight months of recovery time. Billups returned to Los Angeles on Wednesday. Clippers coach Vinny Del Negro said Billups will meet with a specialist before it's decided when he'll have surgery.

The loss of Billups is a significant blow to the rising Clippers, who have become one of the league's top attractions with All-Stars Chris Paul and Blake Griffin and a solid supporting cast. A punching bag for decades, they have even threatened to steal home turf away from the Lakers in Los Angeles.

Billups had been a huge addition for the club, which claimed the five-time All-Star in December after he was waived by the New York Knicks under the league's new amnesty clause.

He was averaging 14.9 points and four assists, modest numbers. But it was his impact in mentoring Paul and Griffin that made Billups invaluable.

"It's a big blow because of how much Chauncey means to the team: his leadership, his play, all that," said Del Negro. "But we're going to have to handle the adversity and I expect the guys to step up. We have to come together as a team and handle it. I feel bad for him. I thought he was just getting comfortable and his intangibles will be missed."

"But he's not going anywhere. He'll be missed, but he'll be around the team."

Del Negro said Randy Foye will take Billups' starting spot alongside Paul, the elite point guard who said the injury to his respected teammate has impacted him emotionally.

"Everybody has to step up," Paul said. "There's not one person that can fill a void that big. Everybody is going to have to do a little bit more and it definitely starts with me and Blake. It's tough. I've had a lot of time to think about it and talk to out leading scorers Carmelo Anthony and Amare Stoudemire, and made it eight straight victories over Washington.

John Wall led the Wizards with 29 points.

Pistons 99, Nets 92

In Newark, Greg Monroe had 20 points and 12 rebounds to lift Detroit over New Jersey for its season-best third straight victory.

Jonas Jerebko added 16 points as the Pistons snapped a seven-game road losing streak despite giving away most of an 18-point second-half lead.

Deron Williams scored 17 of his 34 points in the fourth quarter to lead the Nets, who have lost four in a row.

Chauncey. And if anybody can come back from this, it would be him."

Beyond cutting short what Billups believed was evolving into a "special season" for him and the Clippers, the injury also ended his dreams of playing in the Olympics.

Billups was one of 20 players chosen as candidates to play on the U.S. team at the London Games. He'll be watching them this summer as well.

"That's one of my big, big disappointments as well," Billups said. "I should have been on the team that won it four years ago but I pulled out because of a family issue, my mother was sick. I never thought I would have another chance to do it and was in a position to do it and now this. So that's disappointing, man."

"But like I said, one thing you can't control is fate. I'm just going to keep moving right along and I'll be back."

Once he has surgery, Billups intends to help the Clippers any way he can. He has already spoken to the team about pushing through the adversity. He won't let them use his loss as an excuse.

"I'll be watching the games and texting them and coaching and helping them do what I think can be one special season," he said. "I think it can still happen."

Billups' contract with the Clippers only runs through this season. Mr. Big Shot wants another shot as long as they'll have him.

"I feel like I have some unfinished business here," he said. "I love the movement. I love what's going on. We had a really good thing going and I'd like to continue that."

Stern: Howard's uncertain future won't hurt All-Star Game

HOUSTON (AP)—NBA Commissioner David Stern doesn't think Dwight Howard's uncertain future will overshadow the All-Star game in Orlando in three weeks.

The commissioner spoke

Wednesday in Houston, where he officially announced that the All-Star Game would be held there in 2013. Houston hosted the league's All-Star weekend in 2006, and the city also hosted the game in 1989, in the Astrodome.

Stern says the lockout has not affected TV ratings or attendance this season. He says the league is doing well in China despite Yao Ming's retirement last summer.

Ricky Williams says he's retiring from NFL

OWINGS MILLS, Md. (AP)—Ricky Williams is retiring from the NFL.

Again.

This time, however, it appears to be for good.

The 34-year-old Williams told the Baltimore Ravens on Tuesday he won't be back to fulfill the second year of a contract he signed in August. Playing as a backup to Ray Rice this year, Williams ran for 444 yards and scored two touchdowns.

He also became the 26th player in NFL history to reach 10,000 yards rushing, reaching the plateau in the season finale at Cincinnati.

"The NFL has been an amazing page in this chapter of my life," Williams said. "I pray that all successive adventures offer me the same potential for growth, success and most importantly, fun.... As for what's next, I am excited about all the opportunities ahead—continuing my education, running The Ricky Williams Foundation and whatever other opportunities present themselves."

Williams retired previously before the 2004 season when facing a four-game suspension for violating the league's drug policy. He returned in 2005, then left to spend the 2006 season with Toronto of the Canadian Football League.

After an outstanding college career at Texas, where he won the Heisman Trophy, Williams broke into the NFL in 1999 with the New Orleans Saints. Mike Ditka, then coach of the Saints, traded all the team's draft and first- and third-round picks in 2000 to pick Williams fifth overall.

Williams spent only three years with New Orleans, but during over 11 years in the league he had five 1,000-yard rushing seasons and finished with 10,009 yards on the ground.

Williams led the NFL in 2002 with 1,853 yards rushing for the Miami Dolphins and received his lone Pro Bowl invitation that season. He backed that up with 1,372 yards in 2003, giving him what remains the two most productive rushing seasons in Dolphins history.

Although Williams' last start was in 2009, he enjoyed coming off the bench for the Ravens.

"It's been interesting," he said in November. "It's been an adjustment for me, but I love the organization and I love my teammates so I'm having a good time. I'm enjoying myself. Anytime you play a team sport, the success of the team really makes everything better. It's nice."

Baltimore went 12-4 this season and lost to New England in the AFC championship game.

During that November interview, Williams was asked whether playing as a backup could possibly extend his career.

"At this point, my focus is just to finish my career strong," he said. "I'm not even thinking two or three years down the line. But one positive about not carrying the ball is my body does feel good."

Williams scored 73 touchdowns over his career, all but eight of them on the ground. His last score came on Dec. 4 against Cleveland.

"I have to thank coach (John) Harbaugh and the Ravens organization for the opportunity they gave me this year," Williams said. "I had so much fun and really appreciated the chance to finish on such a great note."

Williams fit in well with the Ravens and made a lasting impression on Rice, who led the NFL this season with 2,068 yards from scrimmage.

"I was a big fan of Ricky before we were teammates, but being around him this year is the best thing that happened to me in my NFL career," Rice said. "As a young player, you need to be around a guy who knows what he is doing, and Ricky was tremendous to learn from. The way he took care of his body and the way he prepared, he always showed that he is a true professional. This past season with him is a year I will never forget."

"I had the best year with him beside me, and that was no accident. I believe that Ricky Williams is a Hall of Famer. All that he has done in his career, he deserves that."

Harbaugh said during his time in Baltimore, Williams "made a valuable and lasting contribution. I especially enjoyed getting to know him as a person, and I have the utmost respect for him.

"He was great to be around and to work with every single day."

Holmes staying put with Jets after clause kicks in

NEW YORK (AP)—It appears Santonio Holmes is sticking around—just as the New York Jets said he would.

By remaining on the roster through the second day of the NFL's waiver period Tuesday, the talented but troublesome wide receiver will get $15.25 million in guaranteed money over the next two seasons. A clause in Holmes' five-year, $45 million contract, signed last offseason, kicked in Wednesday morning.

Holmes' future appeared murky with the Jets after a tumultuous season in which he feuded with quarterback Mark Sanchez and the offensive line, and was benched during the season finale in Miami for arguing in the huddle.

Still, owner Woody Johnson, general manager Mike Tannenbaum and coach Rex Ryan all insisted that Holmes would remain with the team despite the squabbles.

Holmes, already guaranteed his salary for next season, had a $7.5 million guarantee for the 2013 season kick in after Tuesday. While the Jets could still theoretically cut him or try to trade him, the financial commitment makes that an unlikely scenario.

So, New York is stuck hoping that Holmes can work out his issues with his teammates—primarily Sanchez—and return to the playmaking form that Ryan and the Jets became so enamored of when they re-signed him last July.

"To dismiss some of the good things that Santonio has done for the two years he's been here, he's been a tremendous player for us," Ryan said on Jan. 2. "He's won a ton of games for this franchise. And he's been a good teammate."

Johnson said a few weeks ago that the team intended to bring Holmes back, and it had nothing to do with his big contract.

"He may be one of the best players we've ever had here," Johnson said. "I think you could look at his talent level as extraordinarily talented."

Holmes, acquired from Pittsburgh in 2010 for a fifth-round draft pick, played a key role in the Jets' run to their second straight AFC championship game two seasons ago. But things turned sour for the former Super Bowl MVP this past season.

He openly criticized the Jets' offensive line for not giving Sanchez enough time to throw downfield, and ESPNNewYork.com reported that the two clashed at a late-season meeting. Several players questioned Holmes' captaincy throughout the season.

The capper came during the Jets' loss to the Dolphins, when former offensive coordinator Brian Schottenheimer benched Holmes after he argued with teammates in the huddle. The television broadcast caught Holmes being restrained by tight end Dustin Keller on the field as the wide receiver and right tackle Wayne Hunter yelled at each other. Holmes sat on the bench sulking late in the game while the Jets came up short in a bid to beat the Dolphins.

He finished with 51 receptions for a career-low 654 yards, while also catching eight touchdown passes.

Ryan acknowledged he made a mistake by not having "the pulse" of the locker room and for naming the team's six captains, including Holmes. He said no one will wear the captain's "C" on their jersey anymore, adding that it's imperative the take a larger role on the offense and instill the team chemistry that was clearly lacking as the Jets finished 8-8 and missed the playoffs.

Saipan Swim Club's Myana Welch has the most records in the 11 to 12 age group with eight (50m, 200m, 400m, 800m, and 1,500m freestyle, 100m backstroke, 100m breaststroke, and 200m IM). Two more SSC swimmers are on the list with Grace Kimball owning the 100m freestyle mark (1:05.82/July 18, 2008) and Xenavee Pangelinean holding the 100m butterfly (2:59.37), 50m breaststroke (39.06 seconds), 50m butterfly (34.39 seconds), and 400m individual Ryuto Yanai, Lukas Kang, Miku Tammy, Kaito Yanai, and Kensuke Kimura also had record-breaking swims in the short competition. Nick Gross led the Teachers' losing cause with six points off three aces, while Tyce Mister and John Nekafes chipped in four each. Mister made one kee and one ace, while Nekafes logged two kees.

The Teachers boosted their chances of forcing a deciding Game 5 early on when they won the opening set of Game 4, 13-6. However, Aim Low behind the good service game of Gechig recovered quickly and took the second set, 14-5, for a 20-18 lead.

Then in the third set, Aim Low was still at it and cruised to a 14-6 victory to end the final series. Aim Low's last two wins in the series were juiced-out triumphs. It won Game 2 and boys championships.

There will be two MBT events this year, as Guam will host an open tournament in July. The U17 MBT is for the west division teams, while the east (Pohnpei, Chuuk, Marshall Islands, and Kosrae) will have their separate contest. Then in Guam, the west and east open squads will square off for the regional championship.

Don't let the team name fool you. Aim Low aspired for the highest honor in the 2011 Rocball Fall League and went on to win the championship against the Teachers yesterday at the Marianas High School Gymnasium.

Aim Low wrapped up the best-of-five title series after a juiced-out victory in Game 4, 34-24. The newly crowned champion took the last two games in the series and prevailed in Game 1, while the Teacher's won only once (Game 2).

Playing for Aim Low were J.R. Gechig, Riden Fiden, A.J. Aguilar, and Y.J. Nakayama. Gechig, who had a so-so performance in Games 2 and 3, came out swinging in the title-clinching Game 4, scoring 12 points. Gechig had four aces and two kees, while Fiden continued his consistency in the last three games of the series, chipping in six points off one kee, one ace, and one xunk. Fiden nailed 10 points in Game 2 and contributed four in Game 3. Nakayama managed to

The CNMI will now have two teams in the boys division of the 2012 U17 Micronesian Basketball Tournament.

"Because we have a lot of young boys that came and are still trying out it has been decided that we field two teams," said team manager and trainer Rufino Aguon in an email to Saipan Tribune.

"Team A is composed of the bigger and more experience players while Team B will have the younger ones," he added.

Aguon also explained that having two teams in MBT will help the CNMI develop young players and coaches alike.

National Team player Quincy Johnson will coach Team A, while Ed Manalili will assist him. Omar Ajoste, who coaches the Sonics in various youth

Last night, the four coaches were scheduled to select the members of their respective teams from the pool of players who started joining the tryouts mid last month at the Northern Marianas College Gymnasium. More than 30 players are attending the series of training sessions held every Tuesday and Thursday.

The U17 MBT will be held on Saipan from May 7 to 12 with the host battling teams from Guam, Yap, and Palau. The CNMI being the host country has the luxury of fielding two teams in the boys division. The girls division has its own competition and the Commonwealth is expected to have only one team.
